A SUNDAY EXCURSION

And What Came Of It

During the week past nearly every newspaper in this city has made mention, that His Majesty took a trip on the steamer Warmsmade, to Kalihi, on the Sist ult. Up to this date no change in statement has appeared and the dear, coulding governal public is led astray, as usual, by the supposed correctness of the published event, intended to faithfully portray the locality of a Sunday excursion made by His Majesty. Now the newspapers that published the above-mentioned statement, were in error, the trip, was not made to Talenday the property of the property of the supposed the above-mentioned statement, were in error, the trip, was not made to Talenday the supposed that ablished the above mentioned statement, were a error, the trip was not made to Kalihi, but far syond, but to relate;

III. STAIR.

The swift and staunch steamer Washington left port here at So clock on the morning of the Tist mat, having on board His Majesty who was accompanied by Mr. J. F. Bowler and Mr. Julius Schmidt, the newly created Superintendent of Public Works. It was the original intention to have left Honolulu behind at 4 am, but a celebration of a silver wedding had had such charms the upon it rested the consequent lateness of the fine start.

Once outside the reof the brave little steamer rose and fell to the gentle swell of the blue Pacific and some of her passengers also rose and fell, in their deep voiced expressions of the weinders that attracted their carnest attention o'er the windward side. Couring off the entrance to Kalbhi harbor the order was given to 'keep her off' and, after a short spare the information was given out that the contemplated trip was to round the dark and treacherous shores of—that point on which both satiors and handsmen have looked in vain to use, exected, a beaton warning the weary salior at "cheerless midnight" or any other hour, of the close preximity of—Barber's Point, and thence to the ragged shores of Wainiase.

THE ARMITEL.

Captain Nelson safely steered his swift dismmer to the point designated, arriving off Nanakuli a Government reservation, at 12.10 and His Majesty and two friends disembarked. His Majesty strolled along the beach, while Mr. Howler taking a brick-layer's hammer from his pocket started inland accompanied by Herr J. Smith. All along the land of Nanakuli ere scattered pieces of stone, some, boulders of a great size; the two inland travellers knocked a piece off once in a while, a consultation and examination held generally resulting in the piece being thrown away.

SUMMAY CO-LANDERS.

Continuing, the assarch party of two wandered away from the Government land on to that known as Ludianlii, owned by Hon. James Dewsett best leased by J. L. Richardson, Esq. for the Walanne Sugar Co. Here they were joined by the Hon. Judge Rams (who lately obtained such menuvable notoriety for arresting some Portugueses who were watering their vegetable gardens on a Samlay and who was finally himself arrested and fined for wrongful imprisonment), and two poliocofficers, minions of the law. To the surprise of the Governing indicated was taken by the honorable judge and the policemen to the steamer and placed on board. Beach pulled his boat's stem lovel with Hanlan's stern, and the two rowed on in that position for about two hundred yards further, while a hot thrill ran through us as Beach made his challenge. What could it mean? There was Hanlan rowing in such a style that he might yet pull away, though every since was on the stretch, and those white teeth were showing. And a little to the right was Beach, large and broad with those hig brows of his down over his eyes, and his eyes in the hoat. in Wong vs Kung Chu et al; exceptions from y Term Supreme Court. Mr. W. Entron Gazette:—An article in the Advertiser recently gave a dispuraging account of the reception, one Ormitherhynchua, of a party from Honorbin, via Punalua, received at the hands of the host of the voicane house. Such account may have been strictly a statement of facts. Parties from Hilo this past summer have all, I know not of an exception, a different story to tell.

It was one misfortune, as things generally go, to follow directly in the wake of two parties to the volcane this past summer. Hen, if ever, one rose on the fall of the flag. Beach finished it ery good style, and not at all distressed. As Han an earne up Beach made a friendly sign with hi and, to which Hanlan replied with a nod. Ther to follow directly in the wake of two parties to the volcano this past summer, then, if ever, one would have looked for scanty fare and poor ac-commodation. Agreeably surprised then we were a party of seven, to find clean bests and a full lar-der, from which the landloed held not his hand. Wines and liquors were not there, for which the worthy O. seemed to sigh, and meshinks therein we scent a rodent as to the cause of his discon-tent, for the house is conducted on strictly tem-perance principles. serance principles.

Lake for like, leaving out what we did not have, and recationing some of the things that in plenty were set before us to satisfy the inner man, may serve to relieve the mind of him who may innosently have taken the article alfuded to us a cri-

Cholera Germa.

Dr. Koch the celebrated German physician, who has been detoling so much time to the stody of cholera, has been lecturing on the disease. Though he has discovered the cause, he is by no means satisfied as to having discovered the care. The N.Y. Tribue aums up his lecture as follows: The comma hacillus, or cholera germ, is believed to be half fungus, half animal. It breeds culy in the intestine, not entering the blood. By irritating the intestine, not entering the blood. By irritating the intestine, not entering the blood is rapidly deprived of its watery basis, the circulation is inferfered with the characteristic liribity of the collapse stage is induced, and eventually death is rendered, probably by asphyxiation or slot in the valves of the heart.

Dr. Koch's researches show that in most cases the presumption of a predisposition to choleral influences erists. That is to say the disease proceeds by assimilation and selection. A perfectly healthy intestine probably defies the comma-bacillus but when indigestion has already caused organic disorder the bacilli find favorable conditions. The teaching of this is the familiar one that in cholera times especially, attention must be paid to the digestive organs, and no disorder in short the conclusion to be drawn is that cholera must be met by individual far more than by collective action, and that while the committy may be enabled to prevent the spread of the disease by destroying the conditions which are necessary to the reproduction of the bacilli, the prevention of an epidemic must depend to a great extent upon the state of health of the digestive organs of these who are at any time exposed to infection. It is well to have this made clear, but it is apparent that a great deal remains to be ascertained before it can be said that medical science is in position to deal effectively with the cholers.
